WisdomTree Index Comparison Report

As of December 31, 2015

The WisdomTree Index Comparison Report is compiled to give investors a framework to analyze the characteristics of WisdomTree Indexes relative to common capitalization-weighted benchmarks. All information is provided strictly for educational and illustrative purposes only. No representation is being made that any investment will achieve performance similar to those shown. The information provided is not intended for trading purposes, and should not be considered investment advice. You cannot invest directly in an Index.

Past performance does not guarantee future results. No representation is being made that any investment will achieve performance similar to those shown. All information is provided strictly for educational and illustrative purposes only. The information provided is not intended for trading purposes, and should not be considered investment advice. You cannot invest directly in an Index. Index performance does not represent actual fund or portfolio performance. A fund or portfolio may differ significantly from the securities included in the Index. Index performance assumes reinvestment of dividends, but does not reflect any management fees, transaction costs or other expenses that could be incurred by a portfolio or fund, or brokerage commissions on transactions in Fund shares. Such fees, expenses and commissions would reduce returns.

--Trailing 12 Month Dividend Yield is the dividends per share divided by current stock price, with dividends per share equal to the sum of dividends paid for all companies over the prior 12 months.

--Standard deviation is the degree to which an index's returns have fluctuated above or below its mean – a higher number indicates higher volatility.

--Beta is a measure of volatility that compares how the indexes move relative to a benchmark - the S&P 500 Index for domestic indexes; the MSCI EAFE Index for international indexes, the MSCI Emerging Markets Index for emerging markets indexes; the MSCI AC World Index for global indexes. A lower beta indicates lower volatility relative to the benchmark.

--Alpha is a measure of risk-adjusted performance that compares how the indexes move relative to a benchmark - the S&P 500 Index for domestic indexes; the MSCI EAFE Index for international indexes; the MSCI Emerging Markets Index for emerging markets indexes; the MSCI AC World Index for global indexes. A higher number indicates higher risk-adjusted return relative to the benchmark.

--Correlation is a statistical measure of how an index moves in relation to another index or model portfolio. A correlation ranges from -1 to 1. A correlation of 1 means the two have moved in lockstep with each other. A correlation of -1 means the two indexes have moved in exactly the opposite direction. The correlation for all indexes is against the S&P 500 Index

--Up and Down Capture: The up and down capture is a measure of how well an index was able to replicate or improve on positive benchmark returns, and to what extent the index was affected by negative benchmark returns. To calculate the up capture, Zephyr first forms a new series for each of the index and benchmark by dropping all time periods where the benchmark (the S&P 500 Index for domestic indexes; the MSCI EAFE Index for international indexes; the MSCI Emerging Markets Index for emerging markets indexes; the MSCI AC World Index for global indexes) return is zero or negative. The up capture is then the quotient of the annualized return of the resulting index series, divided by the annualized return of the S&P 500 (domestic indexes) or MSCI EAFE Index (international indexes) benchmark series. The down capture is calculated analogously.
