

Life Sciences Team

Bryan Cave’s Life Sciences Team leverages its collective experience to assist scientific and business innovators at every stage – from start-ups to mature companies — within the rapidly-advancing life sciences industry. As a global team with backgrounds and industry experience in life sciences corporate, finance, regulatory compliance, intellectual property protection and litigation issues, we assist clients with implementing strategies to develop, protect, and market their innovations within a growing life sciences marketplace.

Our team assists clients with capital raising and developing strategic partnerships critical to life sciences businesses from our network of business, research and political relationships. We counsel and represent life sciences clients in structuring all types of transactional, operational, technology and strategic partnership agreements to meet their unique needs. Our attorneys also help clients navigate governmental life sciences initiatives and engage in the political process on important life sciences issues affecting the industry, including economic development, legislative and ethics.
